

I wish to go on a theme park road trip

Nick, 8
lymphatic system cancer

As the oldest of three children, Nick always forges a path for his younger siblings, even when he got very sick. His parents took him to the emergency room and a diagnosis revealed that Nick's distended stomach was lymphatic system cancer. It had elevated liver enzymes due to necrosis, a condition where the majority of cells are deceased in the organ. After beginning chemotherapy, Nick's lungs collapsed due to a syndrome from the therapy, causing metabolic abnormalities. Despite the difficulties faced, Nick and his family are finally comfortable at home with his first positron emission tomography (PET) scan showing no tumor activity.

Nick continues to shine bright with his positive attitude as he participates in friendly competitions of board games, Fortnite, video games, and sports with his family and friends.

With a spirit as creative and fun as the books he enjoys reading and the board games he plays, Nick and his family have gone to several theme parks, and he wants to go on a theme park road trip to visit all of them in one go. Seeing the characters in the books he reads come to life will be an adventure in itself. Nick looks forward to spending time with his family in the most fun and exciting places in the world.
