

I wish to have a camera and video editing classes

Fabian, 17

Fabian was diagnosed with leukemia after battling an illness for several months, unsure what was causing his varied symptoms. Fabian had been experiencing chest pain, vision difficulty, bone pain, and headaches. After Fabian was unable to stand due to extreme pain in his heel, his parents brought him to see his doctor, who ordered blood work. That next morning was when Fabian's life was forever changed. His medical team revealed that Fabian was battling leukemia, and he should be taken to the hospital immediately. Fabian was admitted to the hospital and soon after and began chemotherapy treatments. He was hospitalized for six days during his initial treatment, and he continues to receive chemotherapy three times weekly. Although he is currently stable, he unfortunately has had experienced several severe adverse reactions and suffers from the side effects of chemotherapy between treatments.

Fabian loves playing soccer, and he is a huge fan of the Real Madrid team. When Fabian is not out playing a game of soccer, you can find him indoors enjoying video games, specifically FIFA and Call of Duty. He likes to listen to hip hop and rap music and watch The Office or the Transformers series in his down time.

Fabian was thrilled to learn he would be promised a wish. A few of his wish ideas included having a PlayStation® 4 hard drive, being a soccer player, or traveling to Spain. One wish, however, stood out above all others to Fabian: to have his very own camera and video editing classes! Fabian plans to learn how to create "amazing videos", and live streaming his cool edits! He was thrilled to learn new skills and see his imagination come to life through his new media. Fabian cannot believe that his most heartfelt wish was granted, and it was a dream come true.
